WHAT'S GOING ON

Green Home Tour

PSCCU is once again a proud sponsor of the Northwest Green Home Tour. This is an annual educational event, open to the public, produced by the Northwest EcoBuilding Guild, that showcases local, sustainable, and green new homes, remodels, and energy retrofits in the greater Seattle area. The 2017 tour will take place on April 29-30.

The Tour provides an opportunity for members of the community to learn about sustainable building practices from the people and businesses that support it, including builders, contractors, suppliers, and green homeowners. It also serves as a way for building professionals to engage with the general public. Click here to learn more, find sites to tour and how you can get involved.

Keep WA Solar Strong

PSCCU is proud to be a key partner of the Keep WA Solar Strong campaign to pass the Solar Jobs Bill in the Legislature this spring.

In 2006, Washington State created the Renewable Energy Cost Recovery Incentive Payment Program to help build a local solar manufacturing sector and to enable residents to put solar power to work on homes, commercial buildings, and community facilities. The program has been enormously successful.

But now, our aging solar program is both more complex and more costly than it needs to be. The Solar Jobs Bill aims to simplify the rules, giving everyone equal access to owning their power, and will produce much more "solar bang for our buck." The Solar Jobs Bill will allow Washington's homegrown solar industry - from manufacturers to local installers and financing partners like PSCCU and others - to grow and hire dramatically.

The Solar Jobs Bill has been voted out of the House Technology & Economic Development Committee, and is currently under review in the House Finance Committee. We hope the House will move it soon to the State Senate, and then to the Governor's desk.
